Incentive Package Designer

Alan Raymond loves the camaraderie that exists among economic developers. “Partnering with diverse organizations and individuals toward a common goal – helping companies and communities grow in the Valley – is an amazingly fulfilling process and experience.”

Alan Raymond is TVA Economic Development’s economic investments manager. He and his eight-member team administer the Investment Credit program, which designs and manages economic incentive programs for existing and new industrial customers in the Valley.

Raymond has been with TVA Economic Development for 11 years. Previously he served as senior advisor to John Bradley, senior vice president of TVA Economic Development. As senior advisor, Raymond’s responsibilities included designing programs and regional initiatives and working with prospects and existing industries throughout TVA’s seven-state region. Prior to that role, he worked as a target market specialist, recruiting steel and chemical companies to the Valley.

Before joining TVA, Alan was an industrial project manager for the Mississippi Development Authority, and also spent several years in international trade and sales management, focusing on Latin America. He has master and bachelor of arts degrees in foreign languages from Mississippi State University.

Alan is a native of Pensacola Beach, Florida. He and his wife and three children and live in Nashville, Tennessee.
